To Whom It May Concern,

I feel that the current settlement offer by the Department of Justice is too lenient on Microsoft. It does not do enough to punish Microsoft for their past transgressions and isn't strong enough to prevent them from operating in exactly the same manner in the future.

I also find it odd that Microsoft should be allowed to choose one member of the oversight committee and have veto power over the second member. They are the ones who are supposed to be punished. They shouldn't get to choose who punishes them.
